

THE NEW ENGLAND JOURNAL OF HIGHER EDUCATION

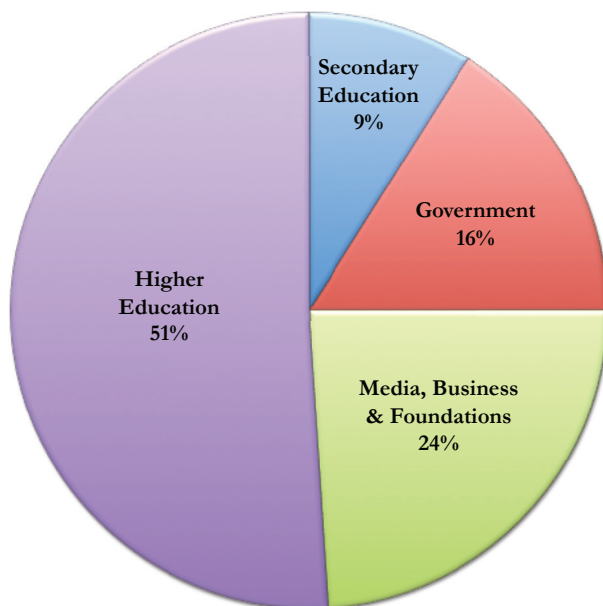

NEBHE'S CONNECTION

For more than two decades, Connection: The Journal of the New England Board of Higher Education provided a forum for educators, elected officials, CEOs and others to share new thinking and best practices on topics ranging from changing demography to college affordability and college readiness to digital technology on campus and in the classroom.

In June 2007, Connection became The New England Journal of Higher Education — the only source of compelling commentary and cutting-edge analysis from America's higher education heartland.

CIRCULATION

Reach New England's decision-makers in education, government and business through the nation's only regional journal exploring higher education and economic development. The New England Journal of Higher Education's highly targeted 12,000-plus readers are people who make decisions, control budgets and influence opinions in their organizations and beyond.

Higher Education: College presidents, provosts, deans, chief business officers, financial aid officers, directors of enrollment, purchasing agents, development officers, alumni affairs officers, and career planners as well as key faculty and policy researchers.

Secondary Education: New England high school principals and guidance directors.

Government: New England governors, members of Congress, state legislators, key aides and mayors.

Media, Business, & Foundations: CEOs, top-level executives of New England corporations, philanthropic foundation executives, law firms, development firms, key editors and reporters at New England newspapers and specialized publications, news directors of radio and television stations and public libraries.

The New England Journal of Higher Education

45 Temple Place, Boston, Massachusetts 02111-1305

617.357.9620 ext.135 • Fax 617.338.1577 • annryan@nebhe.org • <http://www.nebhe.org/nejhe>