

The New England Board of Higher Education (NEBHE) is highly respected for the convening of influential decision-makers in higher education, business and government. NEBHE's annual Excellence Awards Dinner and issue-oriented conferences attract more than 1000 participants. NEBHE's journal, The New England Journal of Higher Education, reaches nearly 13,000 educators, corporate leaders, elected officials and journalists five times per year. The RSP Tuition Break, publications and online access are read by thousands of students, school officials and organizations.

Upcoming Events:

March 6, 2009 New England Higher Education Excellence Awards—Long Wharf Marriott, Boston
NEBHE's signature event where more than 500 distinguished leaders of education, business and government recognize and honor individuals and institutions that have made substantive contributions to improving higher education opportunities.

Jan. 29, 2009 “Bridging the Gap to Promote High School & College Alignment” –The Beechwood Hotel, Worcester, MA

More than 200 state education, K-12, higher education and business leaders convene to explore key success factors for K-12 and higher education partnerships, including strategies to align instructional practices, institutional governance and curricular standards to make P-20 a reality.

March 27, 2009 “Innovation Lab” – UMass Boston Campus Center, Boston, Massachusetts

An annual CRNE conference of more than 400 distinguished leaders of education, business and government who gather to share successful models of student level programs of college access, readiness and awareness.

May 4, 2009 “Higher Education & Sustainability Conference” – Boston, Massachusetts

The Green Revolution has had a significant and growing impact on higher education, our economy and workforce. This conference gathers senior leaders of higher education, government and business to explore its influence on all aspects of the academic enterprise, to consider best practices and successes from New England and beyond, and to explore higher education's role in creating the green workforce of tomorrow.

NEBHE Programs:

Navigating New England's Higher Education Future is an online forum and series of events that build upon NEBHE's December 5, 2008 conference, Higher Education in a Troubled Economy: How to Survive the Downturn and Prepare to Thrive.

College Ready New England (CRNE) unites leaders of education, business and government from all six New England states to develop and implement strategies to increase economic competitiveness and the well being of the region and its residents through expanded college readiness, participation and success.

Regional Student Program (RSP) Tuition Break, NEBHE's cornerstone program, saves students thousands of dollars in public college tuition every year. Thousands of students, school officials and organizations receive and refer to RSP publications each year and access RSP information online every month.

The New England Journal of Higher Education (NEJHE), a journal published five times per year, has provided a forum for New England educators, elected officials, CEOs and others to exchange ideas, best practices and opinions on a wide variety of topics for more than 20 years. A special Annual Directory edition lists critical information about every college and university in the region and is referred to by readers again and again throughout the year. Nearly 13,000 of New England's top decision makers receive NEJHE including elected officials on the local, state and federal level, CEOs, college presidents and deans, school superintendents, guidance directors, leaders of education associations and business groups.

NEJHE's “Newslink,” a bi-weekly email news digest received by higher education, legislative, media, and business leaders throughout New England, is the region's only online source of news and events from New England colleges, universities and education related organizations.

For more information about NEBHE programs and/or conferences, please visit www.nebhe.org/sponsorship or call 617-357-9620.