

New England Board of Higher Education
49th Annual Student Vacancy Survey

REPORT
May 13, 2008

The New England Board of Higher Education (NEBHE) polled 220 undergraduate colleges and universities throughout New England to determine which institutions were willing to consider, as of May 1, 2008, additional freshman and/or transfer applications for Fall 2008 admission.

Among key findings:

- Nearly 65 percent of the 195 New England colleges responding to the survey —126 campuses—still had Fall 2008 openings for qualified freshman and transfer applicants as of the traditional May 1 deadline.
- 40 New England colleges were closed to freshman and transfer applicants as of May 1.
- 17 colleges reported openings for transfer students only.
- 97 percent of colleges reporting openings indicated that financial aid was still available to qualified applicants as of May 1.

The pages that follow list institutions willing to consider additional applications from freshman and/or transfer students as of May 1, 2008 as well as institutions that are no longer accepting applications for Fall 2008.

Prospective students should apply to an “open” institution as soon as possible because openings are limited at some institutions, especially in bachelor’s degree programs. Students are advised not to reapply to any colleges where their applications have already been rejected. Many of the campuses with openings will consider applicants for most programs on a rolling basis. Some colleges reporting openings also reported that certain programs are already filled to capacity. Those programs are identified on the list. More than half of colleges with openings that also offer on-campus housing indicated that housing was still available for additional new students as of May 1.

The information reported on the following pages is based solely on the responses provided by institutions participating in the survey.
